Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching

On behalf of the Office of Academic Affairs at the University of New Mexico, you are invited to participate in an essential data collection process designed to highlight UNM's record of community-engaged research, teaching, and service and to have this commitment recognized by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. This classification involves data collection and documentation presenting evidence of the University's involvement and engagement with community and requires substantial effort invested by faculty, students, staff, and community members. For more information about the Carnegie Foundation's Community Engagement classification, please see the attached overview.

As Department Chair or Program Director, we are inviting you to describe any and all community engagement initiatives, activities, or programs in operation in your department or program during the 2013-2014 academic year. Attached you will find a survey designed to solicit information regarding community engaged teaching, research, and service. If you believe that your teaching, research, or program embodies this commitment to community, please describe your endeavors in the attached surveys.

We recognize that documenting these activities can be time consuming and challenging; therefore, we will provide you with various options for reporting this information. Members of our team are on hand to assist you in any capacity and at any point during this process. Our goal is not to rank or rate these initiatives; rather we seek to identify, acknowledge, and celebrate exemplary programs. We will use this information to produce an inclusive and balanced report that captures the importance of your work and tells a captivating story about UNM's engagement with our community. There are three options for completing this questionnaire:

Option 1 Programs or Departments may provide a copy of their annual report or strategic plan that lists and describes community engagement initiatives.

Option 2 The Carnegie Community Engagement Steering Committee can work with you or a representative of your program or department to complete the questionnaire or clarify any questions you might have about the nature of the data we are seeking.

Option 3 You or a representative of your program or department may fill out the questionnaire on your own. Should the Carnegie Community Engagement Steering Committee have any questions about your answers, we may follow-up with a brief one-on-one meeting.

We would appreciate your responses no later than December 31, 2013. Please email your completed survey to Dr. Monica Kowal at kowal1@unm.edu. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call Dr. Kowal at (505) 228-0137. Thank you for your participation!

Questions for Department Heads or Program Directors

Curricular Engagement describes the teaching, learning, and scholarship that engage faculty, students, and community in partnerships that involve identifying community needs, deepening students' civic and academic learning, enhancing community well being, and enrich the scholarship of the institution.

The questions in this section use the term "service-learning" to denote academically based, community-engaged courses; however your department may use another term such as community-based learning, academic service-learning, public service courses, etc.

Instructions for filling out form: This document includes text fields that are editable.
